The Contributors' National Wilson and Marshall League has been organized with W. G. McAdoo, vice chairman of the national Democratic committee, as president, Charles R. Crane, vice chairman of the finance committee of the national Democratic committee, as treasurer and Stuart G. Gibbons as secretary for the purpose of aiding in raising funds for the national campaign by popular subscription.

In furtherance of this purpose lithographed certificates have been prepared, suitable for framing, on which are engraved portraits of Governors Wilson and Marshall and their autographs and which certify that the holders have contributed to the national Democratic campaign. The denominations of these certificates are $1, $2, $5, $10, $25, $50 and $100.

The league supplies these certificates to clubs in large numbers, so they may be issued when contributions are made. It is believed the solicitation of funds will be greatly aided by this method.

"IF YOU GET THE RIGHT GIRL SHE IS CHEAP AT ANY PRICE"

The Atlanta Constitution

Dr. L. O. Bricker has begun his new series of popular Sunday evening sermons at the First Christian church, under the title, "Between John and Mary," dealing with the sacred and beautiful things which may come out of the love of a man and a maid. His subject was "John, and His Duty to the Race."

After recounting the story of creation, and inquiring as to the primary and fundamental reason for the existence of a man, Dr. Bricker spoke in part as follows:

It is the plan and purpose of God, and the demand and expectations of nature, John, that you should some day meet a maid, fall in love with her, marry her and become the father of a family. In short, having been created a man, you are expected to fulfill the functions of a man. This is the first and greatest demand that nature makes upon you, and this is the highest and best thing she has to offer you.

In the face of this established fact why are there so many bachelor Johns? John says it is because he has never found the woman the Lord intended him to marry. That is because you have not been looking, John; or maybe you refused to recognize her when you met her; or failed to speak to her when you recognized her.

"Girls are so dreadfully expensive," says John. Well, in these days of the high cost of living, they do come a little higher than they used to, but if you happen to get the right one she is cheap at any price. All good things, pretty and delightful, charming and useful things are expensive; and a good wife is all of this, and more, and if she costs a bit she is worth it. And as to girls being expensive, they are not nearly so expensive as they look. To look at a girl in full rigging, top sail and all, fairly takes a man's breath away, if you try to estimate the cost of upkeep, but to look at her takes your breath away anyhow, so what's the difference?

The real reason why John don't marry is that he is afraid. He is afraid of love. Love is the supreme test of life. It tries every soul. It smites every base thing in us, and refuses to live in peace with meanness, sordidness, or selfishness of any kind. It demands nobleness. When it first comes, we leap to it, for it is the most glorious thing in the world, and then we discover its fatal requirements. Alas, we must be good, and we must be great. And we are afraid. And because they are afraid, some put great love away entirely. They choose littleness, because it is more comfortable.

An Old Hickory Wagon

Garfield, Ky., Editor News; dear sir: I have been requested to give an account of my visit to Louisville at the State fair and the Kentucky Wagon factory. I will be glad to do so through the columns of your paper if you will allow me space.

I will begin by saying my visit to Louisville was a very pleasant one, as I was permitted to travel over a goodly portion of her many beautiful streets. My visit to the State fair was one that I shall long remember, because of its many benefits, for there it was that I saw what Kentucky really is. A few things that I saw are: a few of the nation's finest race, saddle and educated horses; cattle weighing from 2,200 to 2,700 pounds each; several hogs weighing from 600 to 1,000 pounds; some very fine sheep and some excellent poultry, as well as the best of all kinds of agricultural and horticultural products.

But my visit Sept. 10, '12 to the Kentucky Wagon Factory was one of great interest, though it is of no use to say anything of the "Old Hickory" wagons as they speak for themselves. I wish to mention a few things about the great Kentucky Wagon plant and why the "Old Hickory" is so reliable. About the first thing of note that I noticed was their lumber yard which approximate value is $1,000,000. In that yard they keep lumber seasoning from two to eight years in order that nothing but perfectly seasoned lumber go into use. The second thing I noticed was how carefully they selected their lumber to see that nothing imperfect in any way was used; third, and still more commendable, is after all the different parts of the wagon are manufactured they are examined again by an expert, and those parts which are not perfectly constructed are rejected. So you see it's no mystery that the "Old Hickory" has been pronounced 99% per cent perfect. I am quite sure that if the farmers of our country could take a walk through the Kentucky Wagon Factory as I did they would see that the far famed "Old Hickory" would be the wagon for them.
